- Board members queried whether settlement was the best course of action. 4. Human Resources Matters

4.1. Unfair dismissal claim

Mr McKenzie thanked the Board for scheduling this opportunity for him to provide a briefing regarding the unfair dismissal claim which had been lodged by previous Auckland Furniture Manufacturing employee, Mr Blake Triallis. Mr McKenzie indicated that he would first provide some background information. He stated that Mr Triallis was previously employed in the role of Warehouse Manager, and was terminated on 13 April 2018 due to continued, unresolved poor performance which presented an unacceptable risk to the organisation. Mr Triallis had subsequently lodged a claim for unfair dismissal. The matter was now scheduled to proceed to a conference with the Fair Work Commission on 15 June 2018; Mr McKenzie and Mr Madden would be in attendance along with a representative from Auckland Furniture Manufacturing's employment law firm, EL Experts. Mr McKenzie stated that he anticipates the parties will be able to reach a settlement at conference.

Ms Cowan asked what process had been followed leading up to Mr Triallis' termination. Mr McKenzie stated that Mr Triallis had been placed on a performance improvement plan for a period of three months, however was unsuccessful in meeting the required standards at the end of that period. Mr Triallis was subsequently invited to respond to the ongoing performance concerns in a meeting held on 10 April 2018. After considering his response in that meeting, as well as a subsequent meeting on 12 April 2018, Auckland Furniture Manufacturing opted to terminate his employment effective 13 April 2018. Mr McKenzie assured the Board that all appropriate steps had been taken to ensure procedural fairness in line with employment law requirements and internal company policy specific to performance improvement and termination processes.

Ms Giulana asked what the anticipated amount of a settlement would be. Mr McKenzie stated that as Mr Triallis' previous salary was $60,000 per annum, a likely settlement amount would be in the vicinity of three months' salary, equating to a dollar value of approximately $15,000. Ms Giulana questioned why a settlement was being contemplated at conference stage. Mr McKenzie explained that proceeding to a full hearing with the Fair Work Commission would be very costly due to continued legal fees, and would also present a risk to the organisation's reputation. It was therefore preferable to settle at conference if possible. Ms Giulana thanked Mr McKenzie for this additional information and requested that Mr McKenzie continue to keep the Board updated on the progress of this matter.

Ms McDonald asked if there were any further questions on this item. Attendees indicated that there were not. Ms McDonald put forward a motion to proceed with proposed settlement of the unfair dismissal claim lodged by Mr Blake Triallis, at the Fair Work conference to be held on 15
